I think all the changes proposed to state park fees should be re-visited. Our state parks used by resident New Mexicans in the winter are predominantly seniors escaping the colder towns they live in. I think raising the daily fee would be a reasonable thing to do but don't discontinue their annual pass to get them the discount they need. Out of state campers spend a plethora of money while visiting museum's, shopping, observing wildlife, and staying in our state parks. Raise their daily fees equitable to say Texas daily camping fee and have reservations required of course.

My husband and myself are native New Mexicans and reside near Cloudcroft which has harsh winters. We look forward to escaping the cold end of January and through the month of February. We care about our state and the image created for the rest of this nation!!

Sincerely,

Evelyn Leonard
