The first come first served, is ridiculous for campsites around NM. When I pack up kids and everything else and pull up to a campground hoping for a spot and all I find are sites with a single lawn chair or a table cloth on a picnic table. Only to see the people come hours later with their camping gear. This needs to be controlled some how. If I simply move the single lawn chair and set up camp, guess what a few hours later I'm in a very dangerous situation. Thanks for listening.
